

Review of: "The Failure of Diplomatic Mediations in the Syrian Conflict – A Comparative Analysis"

Ratno Lukito

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper does an excellent job of describing the failure of the diplomatic argument in the Syrian conflict. The author has already written all we need for an article. One thing we do need for the post is a resource overview, which we don't appear to have currently. Are there any authors who have written on the Syrian conflicts? The writings in which we need to know the issue the author has not explored. Another concern is that it is unclear whether or not this research is a comparative writing. To do this, the author must describe comparatum (the element to be compared), comparandum (the subyek of comparison), and tertium comparationis (the resemblance between two dissimilar items).