

Review of: "Assessment of soil erosion in the Cesar watershed, an initial step toward the restoration of the Cesar River"

Chander Kant¹

¹ National Institute of Technology, Hamirpur

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study presents a valuable contribution to evaluating soil erosion rates in the Cesar watershed, offering potential implications for the restoration of the Cesar River. While the employed methodology demonstrates robustness and the overall content is deemed acceptable.