

Review of: "Building a digital republic to reduce health disparities and improve population health in the United States"

Elizabeth Bakibinga

Potential competing interests: The author(s) declared that no potential competing interests exist.

The article is a welcome contribution to knowledge in the field. It is well written, but would read better with a more in-depth write up on the methodology.

Additionally, from a policy making perspective the authors should address the cost benefit analysis of the recommendations.

Where possible a regulatory impact assessment of what it takes to have a digital republic in the provision of social services.