After reviewing and checking the submitted document, I noticed that the document was presented well and there was no confusion between the parts, while respecting the way of presentation, so that the summary was comprehensive and well presented. The introduction and the practical part are very clear. Concerning the results, they are well presented by tables and frequency charts, and well discussed using several references. In general, the document is subject to publication with some modifications.

As for the title, it is better to rephrase it in a way that is more familiar with the content.

Tables include indexes (as a, b, c, and ab) that haven't been stated throughout the article.
