The article is interesting and is in line with the sustainability of the planet and climate change and the education we have about it.

In my opinion the authors should update the references, we are in the year 2023 and the most current one is from 2019.

In addition, the data used in their study are also a bit old.

It would be interesting to make a study of the evolution of the 2018/2019 academic year onwards.
