In my opinion, the most valuable thing in any article is the idea it contains. The quality of the presentation of the material is important in the context of the clarity of presentation and justification of the idea of the article. If I understand correctly, the purpose of the article was to emphasize a balanced interpretation of Peirce's tychism. One can only welcome the idea that fundamental uncertainty (like the Heisenberg Principle in quantum mechanics), along with fundamental law, plays an important role in the evolution of Everything. But if the purpose of the work is not to point out the source of uncertainty and regularity (two complementary principles of the One Whole), then it would be nice to at least discuss what gives the spiritual evolution of a person the awareness of the existence of these principles.
