The manuscript is actually quite interesting in the sense of spatial perspective brought upon this study. However, this study still needs to further develop the contextual and interrelational aspect between the spatial analysis and the theoretical concept that the author is trying to bring. Therefore, some aspects like crime pattern theory being not properly discussed and proven/disproven and that the environmental design is mostly still discussed in a part-by-part basis and not having enough cohesion inside the entire region.

The further consideration of various theoretical concept brought up by the author in the result and discussion might bring forth a much richer insight towards this paper
