This subject is fascinating in terms of sustainable agriculture and rural livelihoods; however, the following amendments should be made by the authors:

Reexamining the literature review and adding a few papers pertaining to the study's methodology is necessary. The progression of current research should be highlighted by authors in a logical and hierarchical manner. The differences between this study and previous research should be highlighted based on the current studies.

For the purpose of assessing the validity and ambiguity of your research, the writers ought to provide a substantial discussion section. Kindly rearrange the discussion section, e.g., under the 'Prospects for Livestock Farming.'

Verify that the references section has a list of all the references that the article cites, and vice versa.
