

Review of: "Prevalence of Buruli Ulcer Among Residents in Jasikan Municipality: A Cross-Sectional Study"

Senthil Kumar¹

¹ All India Institute of Medical Sciences Raipur

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study addresses a critical issue in public health, but major revisions are required before acceptance.

The introduction and methodology should be refined for specificity regarding prevalence trends and associated issues.

The study site was more vague, and references are missing

The sample size of 56 is not clear; it should be elaborated

Inclusion and exclusion criteria are missing

Table 3 mentions disease limit movement and disability, it should be clearly mentioned in the introduction what kind of movement and disability Buruli ulcer will develop.

The study addresses the critical issue of neglected tropical disease of Buruli ulcer. Moreover, it reflects effort and hard work of researchers and author.