The paper's proposal is not original, but it is valid. The article must be rewritten with major modifications so that it will be publishable in a respectable scientific journal. The abstract must include information about the methodology used and which variables were evaluated. In the introduction, current references should be used, and more information should be included about the topics covered in the article. The flowchart used in Figure 2 must be translated into English. The data observed must be subjected to an appropriate statistical analysis. The discussion of the results should be more in-depth, using more current references.
