

Review of: "Unlocking Success in NGOs: The Power of Servant Leadership"

Qaiser Mohi Ud Din¹

¹ Harbin Institute of Technology

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Your study on the theoretical aspects of achieving successful project outcomes for NGOs is comprehensive and covers various important factors. Here are a few suggestions to enhance your work:

While you have discussed theoretical aspects, it would be valuable to include empirical evidence or case studies that support your arguments. This would strengthen the credibility of your study and provide practical examples of how these factors contribute to project success in NGOs.

Project management in NGOs can be complex, and there may be unique challenges that need to be considered. Exploring strategies to overcome these challenges would add depth to your analysis.

NGOs operate in different cultural, social, and economic contexts. Acknowledge the influence of these contextual factors on project outcomes and discuss how the application of your theoretical framework may vary across different settings. This would highlight the need for adaptable approaches based on specific circumstances.