

Review of: "Skin related health issues among health care workers due to utilizing of personal protective equipment during COVID-19 pandemic in Pakistan"

aysel doğan

Potential competing interests: The author(s) declared that no potential competing interests exist.

Dear author(s); Your work on the effect of personal protective equipment on skin problems at a time when the pandemic is active is admirable.

However, a few points in the article need correction.

There are many grammatical mistakes in the article which can't be ignored.

Calculating the sample size is good, but the sample you have reached has low statistical power to represent the population. There are nurses and doctors in your sample, and there is no other health professional group.

Therefore, it is not possible to generalize your results.

Since the study was carried out with a small group, it can be considered as a preliminary study.

In addition, there are many published studies on the effects of PPE on healthcare workers and even skin problems. You should compare the discussion part of your research with the results of these studies.

It would be correct to include your additional references in the references section.