This is a really interesting piece. I very much appreciated the paper given the legal implications of suicide in Nigeria, which I have to admit, I was unaware of prior to reading this piece. I think overall, I would focus on how you could turn these findings into advocacy for more empathetic laws in Nigeria. Additionally, the theory needs to be explained more clearly. It feels like it just goes too quickly into the results and really needs a step-by-step explanation of what you did, from a coding perspective. Last, the whole paper needs a good proofread, and I would go to the original sources always (e.g., don't say "as cited in" ... just go to the original source). Overall, I think this is a really interesting piece! Nice job!
