Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The text is divided into two parts: 1) an extensive overview of educational institutions and policies in India, and 2) a plan to improve these institutions.

The text contains a considerable amount of information. However, upon reviewing the Qeios Manifesto, "We are unveiling new ways of creating and distributing knowledge," I realized that there may be room for improvement.

According to my perspective, the work presents information without imparting knowledge. It is more like a document that discloses future goals.
