

Review of: "Startup Project Development: Travel Schedule Management App “Triplanner”"

Armando Frias

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article was enjoyable to read because it covered a topic that is current and interesting and the text is light and well written.

This is an article introducing a product and the associated business model. A background on the travel motivation and the methodological tools used must be provided if the intention is for future publication in a scientific journal. The text could be improved if you paid more attention to the theoretical and methodological foundations that guided your work and removed the emphasis on "Triplanner will..."

I will be a future client of the Triplanner application without a doubt.

Good luck with your work and the Triplanner app.