This is an interesting paper that presents Giardia lamblia infection and associated risks. Overall, the study's interest lies in its potential to inform public health policies, improve clinical outcomes, and contribute to the understanding and control of Giardia lamblia infection in the local context of Ethiopia. It would be helpful to reduce the title of the paper to "Giardia lamblia Infection and Associated Risk Factors Among Patients in West Guji Zone, Ethiopia". Despite some limitations that the authors have well mentioned, I highly recommend this paper for publication.
