Congratulations for your work! COVID issues are always interesting. However, I see that your work was done in 2022. Since things move so fast with COVID and you are focusing on COVID-vaccine side effects, it would be interesting to expand the study period to assess possible long-lasting side effects. In addition, it is unclear where the information came from (hospital records? primary care clinics). It would be also nice if you compared your results to the results published in other studies and the information given by the vaccine manufacturers themselves.
