The research topic is original and relevant because it can bring important contributions. The theoretical background is clearly described. The structure of the article should be rearranged.

In the Abstract, the purpose, the originality of the research, the limits and the practical and theoretical contributions should be described in more detail.

In the first paragraph an introduction should be described with the detailed description of the objectives, research question and research methods, added value, results and academic and managerial contribution.

The second paragraph should describe the reference framework and research method.

The third paragraph should concern the results obtained from the research.

Finally, in the last paragraph concerning the discussions and conclusions, the new elements of the research and the practical and theoretical contributions must be described in more detail.
