

Review of: "Integrating Mental Health Support in Emergency Planning and Disaster Risk Mitigation Strategies"

Zara Masood¹

¹ University of Miami

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. The topic of the article is timely and interesting but needs a lot of work before it can be published in a High Impact Factor journal.
2. There is no clarity on the author's intent while reading the article as there is neither a strong review of literature nor the use of a methodology. Therefore, it's hard to figure out whether the authors aiming to impact policy or explore something else. At the moment it is written as an "Opinion Piece" and does not reflect scholarly rigor.
3. Writing needs attention. There are grammatical and syntax errors throughout the article e.g. In the Abstract, author has used the term "lengthy suffer..." should be replaced with "suffer at length from..."
4. I would suggest that the author take some more time to research this topic and come up with a clear purpose for their study.