

Review of: "Magnesium and Longevity"

Mohammad Ahmad Abdalla¹

¹ Human Anatomy Department, Tikrit University, Iraq

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. The subject of the article is within the scope of the journal, and it is an interesting and valuable contribution.
2. The title is informative, relevant, and sufficiently reflects the article's contents.
3. The abstract is adequate, informative, ordered, and well-structured.
4. The introduction is suitable in length, relevant, and has clarified topics.
5. The tables and figures are necessary and acceptable.
6. The results are discussed from multiple points of view and placed into the main text without being over-interpreted or confused.
7. The discussion is supported by references to other previous researchers or by the current study's findings.
8. The conclusion has answered the aim of the study and is justified by the data.