The article on G20 presidency in COVID era highlights the importance of data governance and policy restructure for better outcome. While the authors have done a great job in synthesizing the areas of concern and link it to the current perspective, yet, some more in-depth literature review specifically focusing on health care policies of India, practices and current situations and how G20 presidency can help in improving the currently situations and future recommendations on better sustainable healthcare practices shall definitely aid in improving the paper and attract reader's attention.
