

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Transient bullous dermolysis of the newborn

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Transient bullous dermolysis of the newborn. ORPHA:79411

Transient bullous dermolysis of the newborn is a rare subtype of dystrophic epidermolysis bullosa (DEB, see this term) characterized by generalized blistering at birth that usually regresses within the first 6 to 24 months of life.