

Review of: "Grandparenting Children With Special Needs and Disabilities: A Narrative Review"

Alejandro Klein<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de Guanajuato, Campus León

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I found it to be a serious, competitive paper that follows established academic standards, especially according to the academic tradition of the northern hemisphere.

The bibliographic search is broad, attentive, and inclusive.

The issue of grandparents is becoming more relevant every day, and I believe that it is probably becoming the essential relationship axis of contemporary families.

Therefore, every contribution to the topic is relevant and pertinent.

I would have liked to have some more personal reflections from the author, but those he presents are appropriate and relevant.

For the above, I suggest that the paper be published, and I congratulate the author.

Best regards, Dr. Klein