

Review of: "[Mini Review] Viburnum: an overview in relation to risks of allergy"

Karina Fraige

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The Abstract is too brief and lacks information, as well as the Conclusion. In the Introduction, it is cited that the genus Viburnum has diverse biological activities, but none is discussed. In Results and Discussion, no discussion has been provided, only a description of some characteristics and properties of some species. The references used are current but are too few for a review (or even a mini-review). So I suggest reporting the biological activities, improving the discussion, and looking for more references in the literature.