

Review of: "[Short Communication] Immunology of a Morbillivirus: Measles 1954 to Current"

Nourhan H. AbdelAllah<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Beni Suef University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article "Measles: 1963-2023, Immunology of a Morbillivirus"

In this article, the authors highlight some important information about measles immunology in humans till this year, however, the author needs to address the following:

1. Under the section "development of measles research" the author only showed the research in 1993 and then jumped to other findings without representing when or the research development in between, therefore, the author should discuss the measles immunology research development clearly in a chronicle way.
2. What is the purpose of the "limitations section", as the information under this section isn't related to the objective of the article?
3. Finally, the author should express properly the impact of the new discoveries of measles immunology on the medical application & what is the driving force to further investigate the uncovered aspects of the host immune response against measles.