

Peer Review

Review of: "Evaluation of Chemical Content and Phytochemical Composition of Yemeni Almond Cultivars"

Fariba Asgharpour¹

1. Cellular and Molecular Biology Research Center, Health Research Institute, Babol University of Medical Sciences, Babol, Iran, Babol University of Medical Sciences, Babol, Iran

The abstract is clear and informative, presenting the key nutritional and phytochemical findings of Yemeni almond cultivars. The data are well-structured and highlight the unique properties of local almonds. Including a brief mention of the analytical methods would further strengthen the abstract. Overall, the study is relevant and well-presented.

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.