Dear authors,

It is an interesting topic that you have undertaken. I would like to point out some points that will make your paper robust:

1. The theories that you mention in your paper needs to be synthesized. I suggest making a table with important outcomes and conclusions.
2. The paper would significantly benefit if an empirical study is conducted. There are many good scales that you can use for this study.
3. While Tanzania is a different landscape, can this study be replicated in other parts of the world? If you think in those terms, it would help you design your research better.

I hope you will take my suggestions in a positive manner and I wish you best of luck for future.
