The article doesn't seem real and serious to me. Is it a joke? While the article topic is very interesting, the approach and form do not meet academic norms.

1. Minimal number of references
2. No related work
3. The author failed to provide evidence for his statements with existing or new research.

This article explores an interesting and novel topic that would be a good basis for some solid academic research. But in this form is not academic nor research article.
