

Review of: "Are non-native speakers' English pronunciation similar?: Evidence through PRAAT recording software"

Hui Chen

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper analyzes the difference of English pronunciation between two non-native speakers through the PRAAT recording. However, only two participants were recruited, each speaking only one word "think" and one sentence "I thought that thing." Therefore, this paper is only suitable as a case report, rather than a technical paper.