

Review of: "Relevance of Medical Ethics in Public Health: Case Study of Polio Eradication"

Muhammad Rafi¹

¹ Nanjing University of the Arts

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The articles discuss the hottest topic of polio vaccination which is the need of this century. The authors, based on their judgments, tried to write a good literary work. Although the article does not usually follow the format of any journal usually written in the field of medicine. I know how to write a quality paper in this field, so authors are encouraged to follow any specific journal format and analyze data to produce a quality research paper for readers. In this article, the authors need to include more recent literature to fill the gap in the literature and better explain the entire article, such as introduction, literature review, research method, analysis of results, discussion, and conclusion. In addition, authors need to improve the writing style of the article, avoiding too long and too short sentences. More importantly, authors should review/correct the references at the end.