

Review of: "Rush Farming of Konjac (Amorphophallus Muelleri) Among Novice Farmers In West Java, Indonesia: A Descriptive Study"

Francis Wahono

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. This article is more or less a cost benefit analysis, whereas the title is meant to be a narrative story of novice farming of konjac in a village? in West Java. Thus I want to hear more about the rich story of the plight of the novice farmers in rushing their effort of farming the konjac, a new crop so to speak, rather than - however valuable as a commodity would be- its cost benefit analysis.
2. There are intertwined multi-factors besieging young farmers in Java, from lukewarm agrarian reform (see the mandate of UUPA 1960, low support of input subsidies, technologies, marketing, and transport as well as bureau infrastructures. These should be the caveat of the authors' description.
3. I am glad the enkindle spirit of young researchers to engage in the young farmers' plight dan their farming, still exist, hope that my decent notes don't deter you to improve for the better. Bravo.