

Review of: "Exploring the ATP Synthesis in Unique Cellular Structures: A Preliminary Hypothesis"

Subhadip Ghosh¹

¹ Institute for Bioengineering of Catalonia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The hypothesis discussed in this manuscript is a novel concept and intriguing considering the series of electron transfer pathways as mentioned for the ATP synthesis. However, the interpretation of the results is poorly presented and confusing for readers. Some of the abbreviations are not explained, eg. AA. I also fail to understand the necessity of using isotopes as compared to unlabeled molecules, for characterizing the reaction pathways. I recommend the acceptance of this manuscript once these issues are taken care of.