The topic covered is very interesting: Sacred Plants and Their Miraculous or Healing Properties.

The author has done an excellent job reviewing and searching for data on the plants used in the traditional medicine of ancient people. He has written an excellent introduction that shows the interest and knowledge of the importance these plants have had in traditional and healing use by ancient people.

The examples that he analyses and documents are very interesting and are accompanied by the references used that have been known since ancient times. He makes a very detailed and very complete description of these plants with the compounds responsible for these activities and physiological effects.

In my opinion, I indicate that it is an excellent publication due to the bibliographic data used, the description of the plants, their effects, and their responsible compounds.

He shows some important conclusions for all this analysis that he has carried out on the plants and the uses that have been made throughout history.

I want to congratulate the author for this contribution to the knowledge and information on the use of medicinal plants.
