The article has sentence structure issues and this piece therefore requires English language editing substantially.

Citations in the article are not consistent with the APA style. For instance, when more than one work of an author is cited, the citations should be in chronological order, which is not followed. Also, when a number of authors are cited for one conceptual unit, the order has to be alphabetical, which is also not followed.

Conceptually, the article is purely descriptive and can do well to add an analysis of the issues discussed. While the paper states that empirical data is presented in the introduction, I do not see any such data being presented or analyzed. The article therefore needs substantial revision.
