

Review of: "Who Is Responsible for Preventing Children's Sexual Harassment?"

Amanda Said

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is a very interesting research. It is good to read and understand how such a important theme is seen in Indonesia. As a way to facilitate the acess of this study worldwide, I suggest the inclusion of some explanation about some professionals that might not be known for the outside community (such as the Babinkamtibmas). I also felt the need to understand more the characteristics of the participants of the study and the reason why they were invited, and not other professionals - such as the educational institutions' staff, for example.