I am very excited for the author about this paper! My work is in medicine, and I am very familiar with all these theories as it was originated in the medical field, and we use it for various reasons to understand the behavior of patients, but I am always excited, and I encourage young scholars to think outside the box and utilizing these theories in different fields, as this paper is trying to do!

Theoretically, I agree with other reviews, and I think this model is very logical, but I am also interested to see some data collected to test it. Multi-regression models and logistic regression can be a good start to testing it!

Good luck! Great Work!
