

Review of: "[Mini Review] Role of Mango in Immune System"

Jyotsna Jaiswal¹

¹ University of Allahabad

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Comments

General comments

Authors in their manuscript have presented a detailed application of Mangifera indica in the immune system. However, the manuscript contains some typos and grammatical errors that should be corrected. The authors are required to strictly adhere to the format of the journal while writing the manuscript. The introduction section should clearly demonstrate the purpose of the study and its significance. The authors are required to present a critical analysis of the data and information rendered by various workers and offer suggestions for further productive research.

Specific comments

1. The manuscript contains relevant information on the subject of research that could be of use to researchers and the health industry. However, some more relevant and scientific content should be added. The mechanisms of actions of different phytochemicals isolated from the plant should be highlighted.
2. Please mention the unit of each quantity in section 2.7 to make it more comprehensible. The references are required to be presented as per the format of the journal.
4. The contribution of the plant as such for public welfare and environmental health may also be illustrated.