Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. At the end of the introduction suddenly appears the word "Corpus Christianum" which has never been mentioned before and the important reason for Corpus Christianum.
2. The literature study method is too simple like the method of making a summary. In the introduction, how is "Corpus Christianum" Learning as a Theological Education Curriculum Towards a Global Society? But in the method of formula theories about Corpus Christianum Learning as a Theological Education Curriculum for a Global Society. So, goals and methods are not unity.
3. Critical analysis in the discussion section on Corpus Christianum Theological Education Towards Globalization is very shallow, there is no logical explanation connecting claims and relevant facts/information. The discussion has not yet answered how the results of formulating the theory of Corpus Christianum Learning as a Theological Education Curriculum for a Global Society are.
