

Review of: "NPO vs CSR: Will CSR eliminate the need for NPOs? The case of companies limited by guarantee in the UK"

Sefiani Naoufal¹

¹ Université Abdelmalek Essadi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The concept of corporate social responsibility (CSR) in nonprofit organizations (NPOs) is a challenge for the literature and for the organizations themselves.

1. Problem statement is good but the introduction is weak. It should be clearly indicated which proposals are new, which features are different from existing approaches.
2. It should be clearly indicated which proposals are new, which features are.
3. Literature review should be extended. Authors can include the following
4. English writing and grammar problem should be carefully checked and organized.
5. Connect discussions, research gaps and future research scope more elaborately for better understanding.
6. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?: Methods are know and appropriate.
7. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?: Needs some improvement.
8. Implications for research, practice and/or society: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for research, practice and/or society? Does the paper bridge the gap between theory and practice? How can the research be used in practice (economic and commercial impact), in teaching, to influence public policy, in research (contributing to the body of knowledge)? What is the impact upon society (influencing public attitudes, affecting quality of life)? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?: Improve the comparative study.

