

Review of: "Economics of Cattle Fattening - A Case of Bangladesh"

Aziz Ahmed¹

¹ University of Wollongong

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors present an important economic activity for Bangladesh, which touches the lives of most people in Bangladesh in one way or another. The findings and recommendations from this study may be useful for government agencies to plan interventions to improve the efficiency of this economic activity and to ensure that the primary growers get the most benefit from it.

To improve the usefulness of this paper, the authors may consider renaming the term "Marketing" to 'Marketing, Sales, and Logistics.'

Also, the authors should add the specific year this study was conducted and include some benchmark figures for that year, such as GDP, per capita income, the US dollar to Bangladesh Taka exchange rate, inflation rate, etc.

There are some minor spelling and grammatical errors that can be fixed by a thorough review of the paper.

Overall, the paper is well-written and has the potential to be useful to the community.