Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article synthesized existing research on TikTok and its impact. However, the content only provided arguments related to TikTok with a few individual studies, and did not go into the synthesis of related research.

Methodology: The author did not clearly and specifically state the method used for the purpose of synthesizing the studies. In the article, the authors did not provide:

- Research question
- Research Methods
- Keywords for searching
- Which journal system is used as the database?

Authors should use a systematic approach, develop relevant keywords, provide published research problems and analyze and cite articles related to the topic of interest to the authors. /
