

Review of: "The Effect of Group-Based Family Orientation to Community Mental Health Services"

March Chai

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Overall, the topic is both interesting and needed, and the research is well constructed. The title and abstract are appropriate for the context of the article. The introduction could include more introduction to recovery-oriented mental health services and explanation on IGS.