

Review of: "On the Resilience of Urban Real Estate Development"

Jem Cloyd Tanucan¹

¹ Cebu Normal University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article can potentially be a valuable contribution to the field of urban real estate. However, it could benefit from some revisions to improve its clarity and structure. Specifically, the abstract could be reorganized to provide a more systematic overview of the research. The introduction could also be improved by providing more information about the resilience of urban real estate, including current research on the topic and the current problems of urban real estate. The relationship between resilience and sustainability could also be explained more clearly. In addition to these suggestions, the article could benefit from a more concise writing style and more consistent use of citations. By making these revisions, the article would be more likely to be accepted for publication and positively impact the field.