

Review of: "Navigating the Skills Revolution: The Essential Role of Competence Frameworks"

Helen Higson<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Aston University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I am judging this paper against a properly peer-reviewed journal article. This paper needs quite a bit of work before it is submitted to such a journal. There are a number of issues which would need to be addressed:

1. Some grammatical errors
2. Clarity of purpose of this article. It sets out to be an opinion piece, but I don't think this is what it is. It seems to be a descriptive overview of some of the literature.
3. Need to define what Education 4.0 is.
4. The literature review is not exhaustive, and there are a number of places where large statements are made without reference to the literature.
5. Where does the Table come from? Put the sources.
6. As other reviewers have said, it needs a proper methodology.
7. I would like to have seen some empirical research to test the assumptions, and some analysis of the different frameworks.

Having said all this, I think its core premise is interesting, if somewhat commonsense.