The refugee problem draws attention as an increasing problem in the world in recent years. The author's article dealt with the issue in detail and explained the forms of help that should be given. The author sheds light on the problems that refugees may face in the future by conveying his personal experiences. The article is acceptable for publication as it is, and is a useful work for readers. It was an informative article on refugee problems and solutions, how to provide necessary assistance, and what aid donors should pay attention to. I think the article is suitable for publication.
