

Review of: "Cruises Italian Tourism: Scenarios and Trends After Global Pandemic — The MSC Case"

Tahir Sufi<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de las Américas

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The case study offers valuable insights into cruiseline operations with special focus on Italy. Furthermore, the impact of cruiseline operations on sustainability is well explored. However, for appealing to the audience who reads it for research purposes, authors have a prime responsibility to ensure the basic framework of research work is respected. It is expected that the methods section is included in the study. This section will give the opportunity to authors to contribute to the existing knowledge.

Furthermore, organizing the research work is essential as well. The information is at times very lengthy and repetitive. The information can be consolidated and labeled with more subheadings so as to motivate the readers to engage with the information presented.

Overall, a good topic and a balanced case study.