

Review of: "Sustainable Development In Southeast Asia: Lessons, Partnerships, and English"

Esther H. Kuntjara¹

¹ Universitas Kristen Petra

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Reading the title of this article, I think the article must be interesting for discussion. However, this article contains only a brief summary of the important points the author has in mind about how sustainable development in Southeast Asia should be carried out, i.e., through the lessons delivered, through partnerships, and through the learning of English. The writing lacks in-depth analysis of how those ideas are practiced. Please develop the writing so that each suggested idea is described and analysed using more concrete discussion with clear analysis so readers can also apply them.