1. The abstract section does not include the research results.
2. In the background (introduction) section, it is necessary to describe previous research regarding online learning during the pandemic in various other countries. The hope is that this can be strong support that online learning has varied impacts, including in the two countries where the research population is located. Or by reviewing previous research we can find out the novelty of our research.
3. In the data analysis results section, the models produced in Figures 1 and 2 have not been explained in detail. Then a discussion of the research results has not been presented. It is necessary to link research results with previous research and relevant theories. Hopefully there will be contributions both theoretically and practically.
4. In the conclusion section, answer the research questions and suggestions for further research. Not yet described by the author
