The current review article is well-written, but it seems that it needs changes in some parts.

1. The time of the used references is old, and it is better for the author to use more updated references.
2. It is better for the author to compare the effect of the plant with that of drugs in the case of similar diseases.
3. Considering that the role of antitumor and anticancer activities of the plant has been discussed, it is better to integrate both parts and also use the existing signal transductions.
