The title of the commentary has focused on the challenges of decentralization in health care in Pakistan. However, the aim is missing from the commentary. Further, the commentary does not discuss the challenges faced specifically by the country; rather, statements are generic. The author could have focused by adding more literature on the focus of decentralization that low- and middle-income countries majorly follow. Further, the study is focused mainly on Sindh; can it be generalized to Pakistan? The conclusion needs to sync with the title and body of the commentary.
